

Editorial Policy

The journal publishes papers on current subjects in engineering technology that demonstrate appropriate quality, originality, and competence in the subject.

The journal also considers papers that relate to industrial technique, rather than analysis, and engineering education papers that focus on content, rather than methodology.

The journal does not publish news items or opinion pieces.

Articles are reviewed and refereed, based on their relevance to engineering technology.

On occasion, the journal has guest editors and publishes invited papers and special issues.
